Jewish Scholars and the New Testament: Re-Evaluating the Sources for Christian Origins

Over the last two centuries Jewish scholars have enriched our understanding of the New Testament world in which Jesus and Paul lived. They also have helped locate these figures in their Jewish religious context. This lecture explores the contributions and controversies the “Jewish Jesus” and the “Jewish Paul” have evoked among Christians and Jews alike.

Rebecca Moore is Emerita Professor of Religious Studies at San Diego State University, where she taught for sixteen years. Co-author with Risa Levitt Kohn of A Portable God: The Origin of Judaism and Christianity, her most recent book is Women in Christian Traditions. She is currently conducting research into Jewish scholarship on the New Testament.

This lecture is supported by a generous donation from Reverend Stephen Mather and by the Jewish Studies Program at SDSU.
